

Mini curator

The National Emergency Services Museum has a vast collection from really small items to extremely large items that require a crane to move.

Curating a collection like ours can be very tricky. Before putting a new exhibit onto display you really want to know its full story and the tales it can tell. Look at what the object means to its owner and what impact you want it to have on your visitors.

Find an object from your house that you love with all your heart and use the form below to create its profile.

Object name:	Image of object now:
Description:
Inscriptions and markings:
Size:
When was it made:
Where was it made:
When was it used:
Where was it used:
Who used it:
What was it used for:
What condition is it in:
Who owns it:
Notes:
	Historic image of object:

Memories and the loving story of the object: